EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Prescott Miner is authority for the statement that the Alta Arizona will be removed to Kingman during the present month.

We are informed by Capt. Atchison, county superintendent of schools, that the use of the present school house is donated by the gentlemen owning it and that the trustees have not paid any rent since the building came into the possession of its present owners.

The rain storm of the past has gladdened the hearts of everyone in the county. It has been of incalculable benefit to the stockmen and equally so to the prospector, for it insures an abundance of feed and water in our hills and mountains during the coming summer.

The wide awake business men of Albuquerque are evidently alive to the fact that now is the time for them to stretch out and capture the vast trade of the northern portion of this territory, which has heretofore been controlled by San Francisco merchants exclusively. And unless one has been a resident here no conception can be formed of the magnitude of the trade of this county alone. In fact we need everything and more so now than at any time during the past ten years, for in consequence of the near approach of the railroad our merchants, as a rule, have let their stocks run down in the hope of being able to replenish them in the east at lower rates; our citizens have been buying only what has been actually necessary in the last year or two, knowing that when the cars reached here they could save from twenty-five to one hundred per cent. on every purchase; our miners and mine owners have delayed opening up and working their mines, knowing that when the whistle of the locomotive was heard in the Wallapai Valley they could save fifty per cent on steel, iron, powder and mining timbers. The time has now arrived when all the vast trade, this accumulated trade of years we may say, must go to a new market. And the great question with merchants here now is, where shall that market be? We answer it will be either Albuquerque, Kansas City, St. Louis or Chicago, and which of these cities will get the most of it depends entirely on the enterprise of its merchants. Albuquerque of course has the advantage in being nearest to us, and for a time will naturally get the most of the trade, but in order to hold it they will have to undersell their eastern neighbors and San Francisco merchants as well. Whether Albuquerque merchants will be able to hold their own with their more powerful competitors remains to be proven; we hope that they will, for the nearer our source of supply is the better it will be for us. Nor do we expect that San Francisco merchants will be idle in the meantime, for just as soon as the railroad connection is made at the river we shall have San Francisco druggists among us by the score who will be prepared to cut prices to almost any extent rather than lose the lucrative trade of Mohave county. Our trade is now open to that market which will supply us with goods at the cheapest rates. It is on those terms that the merchants want some trade, at least they say so in their columns.

St. Louis, Mo., March 9.—The correspondent from Memphis, by telegraph, gives the following view of the situation. There are not more than two or three spots of dry ground between Memphis and this point, and scores of the best farms in Arkansas and Mississippi are in a complete state of wreck and abandoned in many places. Cattle standing in the water. Overflowing platforms, and almost every gin house is filled with colored people. At Horbut's landing eighteen colored men and women in two boats moored to a tree on the flooded bank, waiting for a steamboat to take them away. Not a foot of dry land in forty miles. Skiff loads of colored people and their household goods are at various points seeking for ground to rest on. At Sterling colored people, horses and cattle are huddled in the upper story of the only store there. Most fences and houses along the river are still intact, though many have floated away. At Star landing dwellings full of cattle and gin houses full of negroes. Capt. Thorweign, of Chattanooga, thinks there may be unprecedented high water between Vicksburg and New Orleans. The bridge and trestle over Cossados lake on the Iron Mountain railroad, one mile west of here, discovered to be afloat to-night from the back waters coming from the levee below. This will cut Helena from railroad communication, as railroad men say it will be impossible to get trains out until the water subsides.

Three escaped unhurt through a small window leading from the loft on to the roof of an adjoining building. Eighteen persons in the house, eleven perished. Two bodies were reduced to ashes. It is about time the opium dens in this town were suppressed. We have not a very large population and yet some twenty or thirty of our young men are already victims of this worst of all evil habits. And this is not the worst of it. We charge that the Chinamen who keep these dens are in the habit of giving opium to the Indians and that it is becoming a common practice among them to smoke opium in addition to drinking whisky, which they procure from these same Chinamen.
